DESCRIPTION OF DYNAMIC 37

Dynamic 37 is designed by Jan Kjærulf back in 1987 as a cruiser version of theire more racing focused designs. The boat is built for comfort and family sailing without compromising on the Dynamics boats' special characteristics – speed!

The boat sails incredibly well, and if you are into evening match races, this one will be able to wreak a lot of havoc on the race courses, as Kjærulf's design then was many years ahead of its time!

The boat is also very comfortable, both at sea and in port or at the idyllic anchorage. It has a traditional layout with two separate cabins, an almost real bathroom with shower, a large L-shape pantry with stove and oven, a large chart table with plenty of space for real charts, and instruments, and a real saloon with plenty of room for crew and friends around the large fold-down dinner table. Large windows and skylights provide plenty of natural light.

Of course, there is also a diesel driven boat heater for the slightly chilly spring and autumn cruise. The accommodation is built in the finest teak of good quality and finish, and you feel comfortable everywhere in the boat.

The cockpit is large and equipped with winches and locks in the right places. There are three large lazarettes, with plenty of space for sails, cockpit table, fenders and bicycles, etc.

You move easily around on the treadmaster-covered deck, which is both practical non-slip and otherwise suits the boat very well.

This Dynamic 37 has been very well taken care of by its two previous owners and has especially recently been updated and equipped with significant extra equipment. Among other things, it has steering wheel control from Jefa with Raymarine wheel pilot, everything new in navigation from B&G, newer sail wardrobe of which mainsail and jib from Elvstrøm, spinnaker from North in 2019, Code zero from North in 2023 on new Selden retractable bowsprit and a manual windlass with chain. Furthermore, the boat has a newer 100W solar panel with regulator.

Current owners have also updated the interior with hot water, electric toilet, insulation of front cabin, top mattresses for all bunks, indirect lighting in cupboards and much more.

The boat is now in the water and is spring-ready, ready to jump in and sail away!
